

TRADITIONAL GAMES

This game is called "Hide and Seek".

It is a game of strategy and of physical skill.

It is played everywhere, in a park, on a road

It's an outdoor game.

It doesn't have a set number of players, but at least 3 - 4 are needed.

To play you need no equipment.

A counter is selected among the players through rock scissor paper and facing a wall or a trunk this player has to count up to an agreed number (usually 20 or 30).

The other players have to hide. Then the counter starts looking for them. The ones who are found have to run and try to arrive at the base before the counter. If they are caught before touching the wall or trunk, they are eliminated. Anyway if the last player arrives at the base, all the other players are saved.

The counter wins if he/she manages to find all the players.

If nobody is found or if the players are saved, the counter has to start counting again.

The game is called "FOOTBALL CARDS".

It is an outdoor game and it is usually performed in yards without a set number of players. It is played by one player at a time.

To play this game you need a piece of chalk and football cards and you must draw a line on the pavement at a short distance from a wall. The players stand on the line and throw their cards one at a time. The player that throws the card nearer the wall gets all the cards on the pavement. At the end the game the player with more cards wins.
